WHAT IS A LIBERAL?

What is a Liberal? is a question often asked at the present time, and we must confess, viewed in the light of their record in Canada, the Liberals may, in most cases, be put down as men who place party before principle—who are prepared to take any course, no matter how antagonistic it may be to the principles inculcated by a Baldwin or a Brown, providing that by doing so they can weaken the Conservative party or drive it from power. In the good old days of Robert Baldwin the Liberals were men of principles, and stood or fell by them. They were men who loved principle, but they placed country before party when national interests were at stake and law and order were to be maintained. Now we find them, under the leadership of Messrs. Blake and Laurier, professing no particular set of principles to which they feel bound to adhere. In Prince Edward Island the Conservative Government sought to abolish the Upper House of the Assembly, which is elected by the votes of people who are assessed for $250, while the Lower House is elected by manhood suffrage; but the Liberals, under the leadership of a Mr. Laird, opposed the abolition of the second chamber, and succeeded in prolonging its existence. This, strange to say, is called a Liberal victory. In Nova Scotia the Liberals are secessionists, at least that is the cry they appealed to the country on and were successful in overthrowing the late Government. In Quebec, they with the exception of the English Liberals, who held the national honor above party—have joined the Riellites, the party of vengeance, and are now lauding to the skies as a martyr the man Mr. Blake characterized as a "red-handed villain," and offered $5,000 for his head. In Ontario the Liberals have taken, along with the "martyr" Riell, the much neglected (?) Indians of the Northwest to their bosoms, and are appealing to the sympathies of the electors, though every Liberal in this country knows that the Indians of the Northwest have received everything they needed and a good deal more than they deserved, considering their base ingratitude. They opposed the rapid construction of the C. P. R., a work which the Northwest owes its development more than any other influence, and but for which our position to-day would have been much different from what it is. The North-west certainly owes them no favors. They have endeavored, and are endeavoring, to drive from power the man to whom we owe most, by any means, however unscrupulous, however degrading to Canadian politics, however damaging to national interests. In Manitoba the Liberals have always preached "No Disfranchisement," though the Macdonald Government were the first to exercise the prerogative of disfranchisement vested in the Governor-General-in-Council by disallowing a bill to build a bridge over the Assiniboine.

As for the Liberals of the Northwest, more particularly this portion of it, they talk Northwest First, and then ask a man from the Atlantic coast to be their mouthpiece; they ask for representation while they confess their inability to represent themselves by asking an outsider to represent them, forgetting that they were represented by outsiders before. The Conservatives of the Northwest, on the other hand, with the exception of Saskatchewan, have placed local men in the field, and Saskatchewan will follow suit very shortly. They have no need to beg or borrow a man, though they would be proud to elect the Hon. Thos. White-

They, however, have not offered him the nomination as a body, besides those who talked most of having Mr. White represent Saskatchewan, and one of whom promised to vote for him if he ran, are now the head men of the Liberal Association recently formed in this town, and are endeavoring to elect a man whose duty it will be, if elected, to vote Mr. White out of power. This shows what kind of men the head pushers of the Liberal Association are. As for the others, they are pursuing a straightforward course, and though we question their wisdom, we are bound to respect them.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The candidate crop in Alberta promises to be very large, though some of it is likely to be frozen out.

Mr. DAVIN's nomination for Western Assiniboia by such a representative body as assembled at Moosejaw, carries with it the assurance that he will be elected, if not by acclamation, at least by a large majority, notwithstanding the promised political opposition of Mr. Ross, who forgets that he was elected by Conservative votes and may want them again.

The elections in Manitoba, which took place yesterday, and which resulted in Mr. Norquay being sustained by a small majority, turned more upon purely personal and Provincial issues than upon national issues. There is a growing conviction, and one well founded, that the sooner Provincial and National issues cease to interfere with one another the better, and while many of those who were elected yesterday in Manitoba believe in a protective tariff as opposed to a purely revenue tariff or Free Trade, they are opposed to Mr. Norquay on Provincial issues. But besides this objection to Mr. Norquay, there has been and is a growing personal objection to him and Mr. Greenway in the ranks of both parties, and we would not be surprised to see a strong coalition government formed to the exclusion of the two local leaders. On national issues Manitoba is Conservative, as it should be.

A BAND of Indians near Hatoche were reported to be almost naked, and in danger of being packed in ice in a short time, if not relieved, and the officials of the Indian Department, with that utter indifference to the wants of the Red Man for which Mr. Blake gives them credit, immediately supplied them with the necessary raiment to clothe their nakedness. Overjoyed at their good luck, and with that spirit of gratitude for which the Indian is famous, they held a "give-away dance," to which they invited their "sisters" and their cousins and their aunts, and their neighbors the halfbreeds. At the appointed time the invited guests toed the soles, the host beggar made the opening address, the leader of the orchestra, all skin and bone, grease and paint, gave the signal, and immediately the air resounded with warwhoops, the music of tom-toms and the kicking of heels, and all went merry as a monkey dance in Central Africa. After the dizzy whirled had proceeded some time the Indian proceeded to bestow their newly acquired duds on their guests, and in a shorter time than it takes to tell they were as naked as ever. If Messrs. Blake, Cameron, Mills and others have any cast-off raiment to bestow on a needy and grateful people, we can sincerely recommend this particular band to their consideration. A few plug hats and campaign valises would also be very acceptable.

THE LATE BISHOP MCLEAN.

We take the following from the London (Ont.) Advertiser.

The Rev. Canon Richardson, in his sermon at the Memorial Church, London, Ont., on the 14th ult., made a fitting allusion to the late Bishop McLean. The text was taken from St. Matt. xiv. 12, "and his Disciples came and took up the body and buried it and went and told Jesus." After speaking of John the Baptist's death, the sorrow of his friends and followers, and their relief in going to the Saviour, he said:—"It will be no abrupt turn from the current of our present thoughts if I here advert just for a moment to sorrowful tidings which have come to us within the past week. He who from this very pulpit preached his first sermon and his last sermon in London, has concluded his earthly ministry, and to day rests in the paradise of God, awaiting the crown of righteousness laid up for him. How faithfully he discharged his mission and ministered to the flock in this city for eight happy years many of you can bear witness. The fruits of his ministry are to be found in this community to this day, and he is affectionately remembered as a beloved personal friend by not a few before us now. I will not call the good Bishop's death a martyrdom in the same sense as that we have been considering; I will not call it an awful death, though it was most untimely. But there are features connected with the mighty prophet John, his life and ministry in the waste places of Judea, and even his death, and John McLean's pioneer episcopate amid the wilds of the Northwest Territories and his blessed death, which at once suggest themselves to us as bearing a rather remarkable similarity. With a boldness, resoluteness and physical powers of endurance rarely equalled; with a singular independence of character and purpose; with an unwavering faith in the divinity of his mission; with a zeal that never faltered; with a clear, firm grasp of the Gospel of Christ; with a deep personal knowledge of the Word and person of the Lord Jesus, and in combination with these strong qualities a singular simplicity of manner which endeared him with all who came in contact with him, he was a true John-like messenger preparing the way of the Lord. He went almost alone into the then wilderness of the Saskatchewan Valley, and for the past twelve years he has laboured and struggled night and day to extend the Redeemer's kingdom and advance the blessings of that church he so fondly loved and of which he was honored a bishop. He has made permanent provision for the spiritual training and education of Christian missionaries. He has sent forth faithfully native missionaries. He has claimed the whole of his vast diocese for Christ. He rests from his labours, and his works do follow him. He has lived and died at his post. His name will ever be associated among those of the noblest and best first settlers of the Great Lone Land. For years to come men will need no monument, either of wood, stone or brass, to remind them of John McLean, first bishop of Saskatchewan. He lives alike in the memory of the whiteman and the Indian. I am sure his latter end was peace, though it came from the suffering produced by "journeying often by perils in the wilderness, by weariness and by painfulness." He counted not his life dear unto himself, and that sacrificed life has been laid low that he might finish his course with joy, a triumphant partaker of the sufferings of his dear Lord."

Great General Store of Prince Albert

A YEAR'S PROGRESS.

The Royal City Makes a Big Round.

Nearly Fifty-Five Thousand Dollars Expended in New Buildings and Improvements.

We this week present our readers with a report of the number of new buildings erected during the present summer in Prince Albert, with the estimated cost of each one, as well as a statement of the cost of the improvements made on old buildings. In doing so we have endeavored to come as near the actual figures as possible, in order to avoid any appearance of exaggeration, being convinced that the actual truth is all that is needed to convince the outside public that Prince Albert is increasing, if not at a boom rate, at least at a rate surpassed by most towns in the Northwest. We last year had the satisfaction, notwithstanding the trouble that occurred early in the spring, and which paralyzed enterprise to a great extent, of reporting that nearly thirty thousand dollars had been expended in new buildings and improvements. During the past season, however, nearly fifty-five thousand dollars have been expended on new buildings and improvements to old ones. A number of the new buildings have been constructed of brick with stone foundations, others of frame and hewed logs, and all have been built on the "come to stay" principle.

Chief among the new buildings is the COURTHOUSE AND JAIL. It, of course, cannot be considered a local enterprise, being a Government work, but it is, nevertheless, a valuable addition to the town, and a proof of the growing importance of Prince Albert as a business centre. It is a solid brick building with stone foundation, 52 x 34, two stories high, with basement, and contains besides the courtroom and necessary offices, 20 cells, ten on the first flat and ten on the second flat. A yard 50 x 34 is enclosed by a brick wall at the west end of the building, and is connected by passages along the north and south sides of the jail with the courthouse. The work is being completed under the supervision of Mr. Gouveau, the Government Inspector, who has allowed nothing but the best available material to be used in its construction. Thos. Doderidge is the contractor. It will cost about $30,000. The QUEEN'S HOTEL, built by T. Oram, is entitled to first place as a local improvement, both in the matter of cost and importance to the town. It is supplying a need long felt, and we are pleased to say, is appreciated to the fullest extent. It is situated on Church street, near First street, is 40 x 30, three stories high, with a kitchen 20 x 24. The ground floor is divided into a billiard room and dining room by a wide hall leading to the kitchen. The second flat contains six rooms, four large bedrooms, and two parlors, and the third flat contains seven bedrooms. The hotel is well furnished throughout. The carpenter work was done under the supervision of Wm. Knox, Carter & Cockrill having contract for putting up the frame, the plastering was done by T. Powers, the painting by R. Thompson, and tin roofing by T. J. Agnew. The total cost of the building was about $4,000. Next in importance comes MR. R. GUYEN'S two story brick residence on the corner of Church and third streets. It is a large and well arranged house, containing nine rooms, and will cost about $3,500 when completed. The brick work was done by Brown and Pearl, and the carpenter work by Carter & Cockrill. Next in point of cost comes the brick residence of MR. HOLMES, of Garvin & Holmes, east end. It is a story and a half, comfortably laid out, cost $2,000. It was built by the firm, who are contractors and builders. But the man who has built the greatest number of houses during the past year is our enterprising townman J. M. CAMPBELL. Together with the completion of his residence on corner of McKay and Selkirk streets, at a cost of about $700, he has built a brick cottage on Selkirk street at a cost of about $1,500, Blain Goodfellow contractor for carpenter work, G. Sutherland, plasterer, log house and stable on third street, Shannon, contractor, and a frame warehouse on River street and made repairs on the building occupied as a brewery costing $150, Hamilton & Shea, contractors; also repairs on house corner of McKay and Nesbitt street, costing about $150, Blain Goodfellow, contractor.

IRVING MCALL'S brick cottage cost about $1,500. W. J. Carter and G. Cockrill did the carpenter work. Mr. McCall has also built a blacksmith shop on Church street, near River street, at a cost of $350.

D. NEAL'S frame house, east end, was erected by Holmes & Garvin, and cost about $1,400. It is a story and a half high and well laid out.

R. DONALDSON has built a snug little log cottage on Church street, next door north of the Queen's Hotel, at a cost of $400. The walls were put up by Hamilton & Shea, carpenter work being done by W. Knox, and the plastering by Thos. Powers. He is also building a large log stable to the north of his old one, which will cost about $600 when finished.

W. BAKER have erected a frame one-story building next door east of T. J. Agnew's hardware store, at a cost of $1,000, which is occupied by R. C. Wignome, merchant, and A. L. Sifton, Barrister.

J. SHERMAN is building a bowling alley in the rear of the City Billiard Parlor, 85 feet long, which will cost when completed about $700.

W. M. FAWCETT, contractor, last year commenced the erection of a large frame house for himself on Third street, the cost of which was not included in our last year's estimate. This year he has, during spare time, completed it all but the plastering. It has cost about $2,000 so far.

Some time ago a strange man was arrested at the west end, charged with attempting to shoot a boy named McKay, and also suspected of being out of his mind. He was taken to the barracks to await the sitting of the High Court. He was a foreigner, and spoke English very imperfectly, but it was learned that he had come from British Columbia, where he had been mining for some time. On coming up for trial he was dismissed, and it was subsequently learned that a man who was shooting rabbits in the vicinity of where he was arrested fired the shots complained of. On being free once more he started for B. C. by way of Battleford, taking the telegraph poles for a guide, and was met on that very cold Thursday, the 23rd ult., between St. Laurent and Batoche. He was very thinly clad, his hands were bare and he had neither blankets nor provisions, nor would he accept proffered assistance. He still insisted on shooting the telegraph poles to Battleford, and is, beyond doubt, out of his mind, as no sane man would attempt to reach Battleford under the circumstances he was in at the winter time, at least. He should have been confined to the barracks until spring.
